TOPIC OF DISCUSSION

Navigating life after incarceration
in a state or federal prison

Whether you've been out for a day, a year, or a decade, transitioning back into society from prison can be a lonely and misunderstood journey. This group offers a space for those who've experienced re-entry to connect, share, and support one another.

Explore breaking free from any remaining mental or emotional prison bars, discuss re-entry challenges, share resources, and learn how to leverage your personal strengths for the future you desire. Your input shapes the group's direction, and participation may count toward parole requirements. People who are interested may be asked to meet with group facilitator before joining group.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE? Men who have been incarcerated in state or federal prison at any point, for any amount of time. Interested men may be asked to meet with a group facilitator before attending.

HOW CAN I ENROLL? Please call (970) 494-4200 to complete your intake form before attending.
